Dillon Minick's practice focuses on insurance coverage and litigation matters. He assists domestic and international insurers by researching, analyzing, and drafting coverage evaluations involving a variety of property and liability policies. Mr. Minick provides support on issues related to policy interpretation, claims handling procedures, and the practical implications of policy language.

In addition to his insurance coverage work, Mr. Minick maintains an active litigation practice, including drafting motions, briefs, and other pleadings, and managing written discovery. He also contributes to appellate matters by conducting legal research, drafting appellate briefs, and assisting with issue analysis.

Before joining Brackett & Ellis, Mr. Minick served as a Briefing Attorney for the Eleventh Court of Appeals in Eastland, Texas. In that role, he conducted extensive legal research and assisted in drafting appellate opinions across a wide range of civil and criminal issues. His experience with the Eastland Court of Appeals continues to shape his analytical approach and writing focused practice.
