Miguel Taboada is a litigation associate at Brackett & Ellis, where he represents clients in civil litigation and general liability defense matters. His practice is informed by a broad litigation background that includes personal injury, immigration litigation, federal court pleadings and motion practice, and courtroom advocacy.

As a first-generation law school graduate and the son of hardworking Mexican immigrants, Miguel brings discipline, preparation, empathy, and tenacity to his work. He has represented clients in high-stakes matters, drafted and argued substantive motions, and helped clients navigate complex legal systems in both English and Spanish.

Miguel is committed to providing clients with clear guidance, thoughtful strategy, and prepared advocacy at every stage of litigation while upholding the highest standards of integrity, professionalism, and respect.
